

Medical Content Intern

[E-mail jobs@gtxsurgery.com to apply]

We are currently looking for a Medical Content Intern. The position is based in our Chicago office, although outstanding remote candidates will be considered. Contract or fulltime position

GTX Surgery is looking for a smart, sharp, and research driven medical student or qualified professional to join our team. We're working on building state of the art mobile apps for the medical community.

Responsibilities:

- Review and categorize medical content across diseases, conditions, procedures, and other interventions
- Conduct research on trends and behaviors occurring in healthcare
- Tabulate and synthesize market research information
- Reach out to hospitals and other medical organizations
- Support team on other research driven tasks

Ideal candidate: 3rd or 4th year medical student, resident physician, recently graduated medical student, or experience in medical content operations. Strong research, analytical, and writing skills required for the role. Flexible work schedule to accommodate rotations/course work.